Annex 12-1  The safety and health educational training courses, hours required, and qualification of lecturers for occupational health services personnel

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Courses</th>
<th>Hours</th>
<th>Qualification of lecturers</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 1    | Labor Health Protection Laws and Regulations         | 2     | (1) People who have had work experience associated with labor inspection for three years or more.
(2) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more.
(3) People who have master degree or higher in nursing and have work experience in labor health services for three years or more, or people who have graduated from department of nursing from colleges or universities and have work experience in labor health services for five years or more. |
| 2    | Laws and regulations relevant to occupational injury/disease compensation | 2     | (1) People who have had work experience associated with labor inspection for three years or more.
(2) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more. |
| 3    | Introduction to occupational safety and health      | 4     | (1) People who have taught related courses in colleges /universities for three years or more.
(2) People who hold PhD degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene and occupational medicine or related fields and have had relevant work experience for one year or more. |
| 4    | Workplace walk-through survey                        | 2     | (1) People who have had work experience associated with labor inspection for three years or more.
(2) People who hold masters degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene and occupational medicine or related fields and have had relevant work experience for three years or more.
(3) People who have graduated from related departments of colleges/universities and who are qualified occupational safety management.
(4) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more.
(5) People who have graduated from related departments of colleges/universities and who are qualified occupational safety management. |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number</th>
<th>Course Title</th>
<th>Level</th>
<th>Qualification or Experience</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 5      | Introduction to workplace toxic hazards | 2     | (1) People who have taught related courses in colleges/universities for three years or more.
(2) People who hold PhD degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene and occupational medicine or related fields and have had relevant work experience for one year or more.
(3) People who hold a masters degree in industrial safety, industrial hygiene and occupational medicine or related fields and have had relevant work experience for three years or more.
(4) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more. |
| 6      | Introduction to occupational injury/disease | 4     | Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more. |
| 7      | Occupational injury/disease prevention strategy | 2     | People who have taught industrial hygiene or industrial engineering in colleges/universities for three years or more.
Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more. |
| 8      | Introduction to employing workers, fitness for work and return to work | 2     | People who have graduated from departments of industrial hygiene or industrial engineering of colleges/universities, who are qualified occupational health management specialists, and having had relevant work experience for seven years or more. |
| 9      | Introduction to Ergonomics Hazard Prevention | 4     | People who have taught related courses in colleges/universities for three years or more.
(2) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more.
(3) People who have graduated from departments of industrial hygiene or industrial engineering of colleges/universities, who are qualified occupational health management specialists, and having had relevant work experience for seven years or more. |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>No.</th>
<th>Course Outline</th>
<th>Staff Qualification Requirements</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 10  | Workplace Mental Health              | (1) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experience in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more
(2) People who are qualified psychologists and have relevant work experience for three years or more
(3) People who have taught psychology, social work, or counseling in colleges/universities for three years or more. |
| 11  | Occupational Health Crisis Management| (1) People who have taught related courses in colleges/universities for three years or more.
(2) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more
(3) People who have master degree or higher in nursing and have work experience in labor health services for three years or more, or people who have graduated from department of nursing from colleges or universities and have work experience in labor health services for five years or more. |
| 12  | Analysis and application of health surveillance and health check-up data | (1) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more
(2) People who have master degree or higher in nursing and have work experience in labor health services for three years or more, or people who have graduated from department of nursing from colleges or universities and have work experience in labor health services for five years or more. |
| 13  | Occupational health management       | (1) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more
(2) People who have graduated from nursing departments of colleges/universities, and who have had work experience in labor health services for five years or more. |
| 14  | Occupational health promotion and health education | (1) Physicians with professional medical specialist qualifications having relevant work experiences in occupational injury and disease treatment or labor health services for two years or more
(2) People who have graduated from nursing departments of colleges/universities, and who have had work experience in labor health services for five years or more. |
| 15  | Quality management and auditing of labor health service programs | People who hold nursing master degrees or higher with work experience in labor health services for three years or more or those who graduated from nursing departments of college/universities and who have had work experience in labor health services for five years. |
| 16  | Labor health care and workers’ health services | People who hold nursing master degrees or higher with work experience in labor health services for three years or more or those who graduated from nursing departments of college/universities and who have had work experience in labor health services for five years. | or more.

Note: Trainees must submit a plan or practicum report, and such assignment must be approved by the course lecturer.