Annex 15 Qualification for occupational safety and health education and training lecturers

1. The qualification for educational training lecturers in occupational safety management specialist and occupational health management specialist:

   (1) People who have taught related courses in colleges or universities for three years or more.

   (2) People who hold a PhD degree in industrial safety, industrial hygiene or related curriculums and who have had related work experience for one year or more.

   (3) People who hold masters degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene or related curriculums and who have had work experience for three years or more.

   (4) People who are qualified for certified industrial safety professional or certified industrial and mining hygiene professionals and who have had related work experience for five years or more.

   (5) People who have had work experience associated with labor inspectors for five years or more.

   (6) People who have graduated from related departments in colleges or universities and who are qualified for occupational safety management specialist, occupational health management specialist or have obtained a license of Level A labor safety management staff, Level A labor health management staff as well as having had related work experience for seven years or more.

Note:

1. For Appendix 3: The professional courses referred to in: I) Items 1 to 9 of Occupational Safety Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours and II) Item 1 of Occupational Health Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours, must be taught by those who have relevant industrial safety academic background or work experiences.

2. For Appendix 3: The professional courses referred to in: I) Items 10 to 15 of Occupational Safety Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours and II) Items 2 to 18 of Occupational Health Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours, must be taught by those who have relevant industrial hygiene academic background or work experiences.

2. The qualification for educational training lecturers of occupational safety and health management staff, construction safety assessors and process safety assessors:

   (1) People who have taught related courses in colleges or universities for two years or more.

   (2) People who hold PhD degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene or related curriculums and who have had related work experience for one year or more.

   (3) People who hold masters degrees in industrial safety, industrial hygiene or related curriculums and have had work experience for three years or more.

   (4) People who are qualified for certified industrial safety professional or certified industrial and mining hygiene professionals and who have had related work experience for three years or more.

   (5) People who have had work experience associated with labor inspectors for three years or more.

   (6) People who have graduated from related departments in colleges or universities and who are qualified for Level B occupational safety and health management staff, or have obtained a license of Level B labor safety and health management staff as well as having had related work experience for five years or more. However, for the educational training of construction safety assessors or process safety assessors, the lecturers shall be qualified via the training of the said field and have had work experience associated with the said field for five years or more.

Note:

1. For Appendix 3: The professional courses referred to in: III) Items 1 to 9 of Occupational Safety Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours, must be taught by those who have relevant industrial safety academic background or work experiences.

2. For Appendix 3: The professional courses referred to in: III) Items 10 to 15 of Occupational Safety Management Specialist Education and Trainings Courses and Hours, must be taught by those who have relevant industrial hygiene academic background or work experiences.

3. The qualification for educational training lecturers of workplace monitoring personnel:

   (1) People who have taught workplace monitoring related courses in colleges or universities for two years or more.

   (2) People who have graduated from related departments in colleges or universities and who have obtained a license of Level A workplace monitoring personnel as well as having had related work experience for five years or more.

   (3) People who have graduated from related departments in colleges or universities and who have obtained a license of certified industrial & mining hygiene professional as well as having had related work experience in the field of workplace monitoring for three years or more.

   (4) People who have had occupational hygiene inspection experience as labor inspectors for three years or more.

4. The qualification for educational training lecturers of first aid personnel:

   Lecturers are to be selected from cooperative teaching hospitals or hospitals in which the experienced medical personnel have actually engaged in emergency medical services for three years or more and who have obtained a license of high or middle class emergency medical technician as approved by the central competent health authority.

5. The qualification for lecturers of education and trainings other than occupational safety management specialist, occupational health management specialist, occupational safety and health management staff, workplace monitoring personnel, first aid personnel and occupational health service nursing personnel:
(1) People who have graduated from related departments in colleges or universities and who have related work experience for three years or more

(2) The lecturers of technical courses shall graduate from high school, vocational high school and further education establishments, and obtain licenses of Level A, B or single level technician or pass related training, and be qualified as operators as well as having experience regarding related operations or operational practices for three years or more.

(3) People who have practical experience or specialties in related teaching courses for ten years or more.

(4) People who have work experience associate with labor inspectors for three years or more.